Are you a PhD student or recently completed your PhD interested in spending four weeks collaborating with researchers at the University of Sydney’s Body Heart and Mind in Business Research Group? The BHMB group is awarding travel funds to a promising inter-disciplinary developing researcher. The Developing Scholar can expect close interaction with their BHMB faculty host and the collegial BHMB group, and a month in the beautiful city of Sydney, Australia.

About

The Body, Heart and Mind in Business Research Group (BHMB) is based at the University of Sydney’s Business School. The group is highly committed to conducting engaged, high impact research that makes a difference to people’s work lives, and to create more sustainable and effective organisations.

The BHMB group is multidisciplinary and integrates research from the fields of management, psychology, and physiology to advance knowledge on how the human body, heart and mind interact in work settings. We have a specific focus on how individuals and groups think, feel and behave at work and how these factors affect employee performance, health and wellbeing. The ideal applicant will have successfully completed PhD coursework, or recently completed their PhD and shows great promise as a researcher.

Qualified applicants are invited to submit an application, including all elements listed in the Application Procedure section below. The duration of the scholarship is four weeks (timing of the visit in 2019 is negotiable).

The recipient of this competitive scheme will be welcomed into the vibrant and high impact BHMB group and will receive support to develop a post-doc application as well as support for airfare and living expenses to the value of AUD 5,000.

During the stay at the BHMB group, the Developing Scholar is expected to prepare a post-doc fellowship application to a suitable funding body, such as the University of Sydney, Australian Research Council, etc. with the support of the BHMB supervisor(s).

Please note that there is no opportunity to complete coursework during this period.
The successful applicant will join one of the most productive groups of applied researchers in the field of organisational behaviour (OB), management, applied psychology and public health in the Asia-Pacific region. Our work has been published in highly regarded journals including the:

- Academy of Management Review
- Journal of Applied Psychology
- Journal of Management
- Journal of International Business Studies
- Organizational Research Methods

The BHMB has received funding through Australian Research Council discovery grants, ARC linkage grants and other competitive grants totalling close to AUD 2 million. Our work is regularly covered by national and international media including New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Independent, Huffington Post, Business Insider, The Guardian.

The University of Sydney

Since our inception 160 years ago, the University of Sydney has led to improve the world around us. We believe in education for all and that effective leadership makes lives better. These same values are reflected in our approach to diversity and inclusion and underpin our long-term strategy for growth. We’re Australia’s first university and have an outstanding global reputation for academic and research excellence. Across our campuses, we employ over 7600 academic and non-academic staff who support over 60,000 students.

We are undergoing significant transformative change which brings opportunity for innovation, progressive thinking, breaking with convention, challenging the status quo, and improving the world around us.

The University of Sydney Business School

The University of Sydney Business School is regarded as a leader in the region and has an outstanding reputation for the quality of its research across a wide range of academic disciplines. The School is recognised as one of the leading business schools contributing to business practice, policy and regulation both nationally and internationally. To generate the best economic and social outcomes for our community, the University of Sydney Business School is committed to inspiring and enabling future generations of leaders through a ‘business not as usual’ approach. This means thoughtfully questioning anything we take for granted: in business, in government, in the community and in ourselves. Our research disciplines emphasise critical thinking and contribute to public policy across numerous areas, with a focus on the local and global impact of the major trends and issues that the world faces.

Living in Sydney

Sydney is Australia’s largest city, located on Australia’s East coast. It is a vibrant, cosmopolitan city with a diverse population featuring a rich history, internationally-recognised tourist attractions and an exciting calendar of events. It boasts a beautiful harbour, stunning beaches and is surrounded by national parks. There is plenty to do, depending on what you fancy, including culture, nature, sports and arts.
Application Procedure

Applications need to be received by BHMB at 11.59 pm EAT on 31 May 2019.

Interested candidates should complete all fields in the online application form and attach the following;

- Cover letter: The cover letter should list any other activities the applicant would like to undertake during their visit as a BHMB Developing Scholar, why they would like to come to BHMB on the Developing scheme, as well as anything else they consider relevant.

- Research proposal: The research proposal should be three - five pages single-spaced and describe a specific research project, which the applicant would like to develop into a post-doc application in collaboration with a specified BHMB supervisor (host). It is recommended to discuss the idea with the proposed supervisor prior to submitting the application.

- CV: The CV should include the applicant’s relevant education, research experience, publications, presentations and awards
